Students interested in dramatic media have ample opportunities to create their own work as well as perform or work within faculty-organized productions. In addition to mounting full scale mainstage productions, TheatreXpress performs as a student ensemble and XpressFest showcases senior capstone projects.

With more and more industries and businesses looking to find ways to engage and entertain customers and clients, a dramatic media degree has practical applications in a wide variety of vocations, and is the first step towards a profitable career in theatre, film, media, marketing, event management and design.
